Lockton Re, the reinsurance arm of independent insurance broker Lockton, has appointed Rodrigo Botti as Treaty Country Head of Brazil, based in Sao Paulo, joining the Lockton Re Latin America & Caribbean (LAC) team.

Most recently, Botti served as Vice President, Chief Financial Officer, and Chief Actuarial, Technology Officer at Brazilian reinsurer IRB Re. He was also the founding partner and Chief Executive Officer of Terra Brasis Resseguros, and represented Patria Re in Brazil.

He has actively contributed to developing the Brazilian reinsurance market, including structuring innovative risk transfer solutions. He also served as President of ANRe (Associação Nacional das Resseguradoras Locais), and Vice President of Fenaber (Federação Nacional das Empresas de Resseguros).

Earlier in his career, he worked in investment banking, specialising in the structuring and trading fixed income, foreign exchange, and credit financial instruments.

Tom Cunningham, Co-CEO Latin America and Caribbean Reinsurance Treaty, Lockton Re, commented, "Brazil is clearly a very important market in our region, and we are delighted that Rodrigo is joining to lead our treaty practice there. He will bring extensive experience and expertise to the team. We continue to invest in capabilities and talent to meet client and market demands. Rodrigo is a recognised market figure and brings an excellent reputation to Lockton Re."

Pat Andreson, Co-CEO Latin America and Caribbean Reinsurance Treaty, Lockton Re, added, "Rodrigo is an executive with an important profile in the reinsurance and financial industry in Brazil and the USA. He will play a key role in our growing LAC capabilities and will work collaboratively with our regional Lockton Latam colleagues, as we enhance our valued proposition in front of clients."
